Abstract of the Disclosure

A message collaborator system and method establishes a relationship with more than one sender and a recipient.
5   Directives are contained in the profile defining each of the relationships and how information is to be filtered or established into or out of a message. Rules are provided for collaborating all of these profiles in order to pull content from multiple sources remotely or from local databases 10 containing content from the more than one sender, collecting the content into a single, comprehensive message and then delivering the single, comprehensive message to the recipient.